I am sitting here drinking a glass of milk, and somebody will make something silly of that, I suppose. It's lowfat milk from a carton with daisies simulated on it.

Not unlike the "Old Philosopher" who reads lots of things in newspapers, I am often confused after logic deadends at the facts.

Not unlike Joe Crump, who scans the Congressional Record for Herald readers, I am often dumbfounded at what he finds there.

But unlike recent political platforms, I find the planking of the Democrats and Republicans in 1976 is different.

Since the U. S. is now only a coholder of world leader status and holding, both platforms are important for their domestic differences, which in themselves are nothing new.

The question is which platform best reflects the ambitions and interests of tens of millions of independent voters. Ford and Carter and their runningmates are equally new as national campaigners.

Will the 88 millions now working be outvoted by those compassionate to the 7.5 percent unemployed and a percentage higher for minorities?

Will the cities of suburanites and cliffdwellers go liberal with Carter and Mondale and central solutions to central city problems?

Will Jimmy Carter really attempt a reorganization of the central government complex Walter Mondale's mentors created?

Will Gerald Ford really do anything differently than he has done in a creditable recovery year from the nation's second worst recession in 40 years?

Will free enterprise survive its complicity in political slush funding and bureaucracy its dinosaurish mode?

Will the unions vote down the line for a Democrat who's as much a lay preacher as politician, whose nebulous stands are justifiable on the grounds he is a "good man" risen to political heights?

Will Democrat mean "for" the working man if he pays his part of the additional $100 billions or more the Democrats propose for government solution?

Will Republican mean "for" the privileged when that party knows it cannot possibly succeed with an image Treasury Secretary Simon says is synonomous with Big Business.

Or will the basic differences require a split like a Wallace Democrat voting for Republican Ronald Reagan who isn't on the ticket, require closer examination of downhome Democrat Carter who promises New York money men he'll take an extra year to examine tax reform?

Or will I run out of low-fat milk, "Old Philosopher" wisdom and Joe Crump facts before the electorate turns right of center, favors Carter by 25 points, but secretly wishes good ol' Jerry Ford could win.

VOLUNTEERS IN TRAINING--During August those who have volunteered to serve in the city's ambulance service are receiving training from the Temple Fire Department. Here resuscitation is demonstrated on a life-like dummy used to illustrate medical skills needed by the attendants.

City To Seek Speed Limit Reduction

The Cameron Police Department will seek a lower speed limit within the city on highways following recommendation by Police Chief Kent Butler at Tuesday's council meeting.

Butler said the speed limit of 50 mph coming into town is too high, especially near businesses on the highways where a number of accidents have taken place.

He recommends a limit of 30 mph inside the city limits on Highways 36 and 77, especially at intersections where school children have to cross highways on their way to and from school.

It was noted that traffic patrolmen often allow a 10 mph tolerance over the speed limit before issuing tickets, but the local police were instructed to stick strictly to the speed limit within the city.

Permission for the speed limit reduction must come from the Texas Highway Department.

In other business, council heard William Keith report that two dogs on 16th Street had attacked his wife on a bicycle and bitten her on the legs. He said he had lived in a lot of towns but Cameron was the worse one for dogs he had ever seen.

Keith said the dogs' owners had offered to pay the doctor's bills for his wife and he was told the dogs are now penned up at a vet's. Mayor Lawrence Zotz told Keith that the city is trying to hire a dog catcher to help solve the problem of loose dogs but so far has not been successfu.

Councilman Lincoln Mondrik said applicants for the job want a salary of $500 to $600 a month. Mondrik said some 200 dogs have been vacinated in the city's clinics and the clinics need to be repeated to get all dogs vaccinated.

When the ambulance service ordinance came up for a second reading, Mondrik said he didn't believe the council is looking far enough ahead. He said he doesn't see how it will operate in the black and predicted that ambulance service would wind up as a centralized service with everyone contributing to its cost.

Councilwoman Jan Luecke said even if it did operate in the red the city is obligated to provide the service. Councilman Gene Lumpkin said he was vocal about the service at one time but now sees it as "admirable and commendable."

Mondrik abstained from voting on the second reading of the ambulance ordinance.

Council also discussed hiring a fire truck driver and agreed that he could not also serve as an ambulance driver; granted a permit for a mobile home on 21st St.; authorized repairs and tires for a police car; and set a budget meeting for next Tuesday.

Sales Tax Refund

The City of Cameron banked a check this week in the amount of $6,965.94 as its share of the city sales tax. Other cities' checks included: Rockdale, $3,446.63; Lott, $2,930.16; Rosebud, $2,311.51; Rogers, $971.21; and Hearne, $6,413.18.

Senator Praises Action Taken On Raising Estate Tax Exemption

WASHINGTON,D.C.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Friday said change s in the estate tax approved by the Senate, which have the effect of increasing the tax exemption to $200,000, are a boon to the widow and children of farmers, ranchers, and small businessmen in Texas.

Bentsen, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, had introduced a bill to increase the inheritance tax exemption from $60,000 to $200,000. The inheritance tax changes written by the Finance Committee and approved by the full Senate include portions of the Bentsen bill and portions of measures proposed by other Senators.

It would replace the existing estate tax exemption with a $30,000 credit against the estate tax which would gradually increase to a $50,000 credit by 1981. This would be the equivalent of a $200,000 exemption.

"Sixty thousand dollars is no longer a typical value for a small farm or ranc h or business, as it was when this exemption was set in 1942. We live in a far different world and I am pleased that the Senate has acted to correct this situation," Bentsen said.

"According to best estimates, for example, a farmer earning only about $10,000 a year will leave an estate valued at $320,000. An inheritance exemption of only $60,000 for him means his widow and his sons and daughters would have to sell the family farm just to pay the taxes," the Senator said.

The Senate-approved bill also includes a provision by Bentsen against artificially high land valuations that drive up the estate tax. It prohibits an existing Internal Revenue Service practice of assessing some farm land at its commercial rather than its agricultural value for estate tax purposes.

"From all evidence the federal inheritance tax is helping break up the family farm, ranch and business and I am hopeful that Congress will give final approval to these changes in the tax this year," Senator Bentsen said.

2 Rockdale Men Shot In Separate Incidents

Two Rockdale men are in a Temple hospital, one wounded in a shooting incident and the other victim of an accidental shot.

Described in satisfactory condition Tuesday was Scott Manson of Austin, who was wounded several times by a .22 revolver in a shooting incident in the 100 block of East Second Street at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

His wife, 35, also of Austin, was arrested at 338 Manson Street in Rockdale and placed in the Milam County jail awaiting charges in connection with the shooting.

Rockdale Police Chief Felipe Martinez said after he was shot Manson jumped in his car and rammed a house at 111 East Second. The house belongs to the Alcorn family and no one was injured.

Manson was taken to Scott and White Hospital in Temple where his condition was described as satisfactory.

Fritz Dornhoffer, 81, is in critical condition in Scott and White after accidentially shooting himself in the head Sunday night.

His wife told officers the man had gone out to shoot at an armadillo and when he did not return she became worried and went out to look for him. She found him in the yard with a wound in his head.

Directors To Meet

The Directors of the Youth Exposition Building Association will meet Monday, August 23 at the Chamber of Commerce meeting room at 8 p.m. All Directors are urged to attend.

Family Planning Office Moved

The Family Planning office has moved from 310 N. Travis to 704 W. Sixth Street in Cameron, which is the Community Center.

Family planning is available to anyone who wants to apply for the services, which are free.

For information, contact Jessie Mae Matthews at the center or call 697-3101.

Sen. Bentsen To Visit Here With Lions, Rotarians

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen will address a joint meeting of the Cameron Lions and Rotary Clubs at noon Monday, Aug. 23 at The Texan Restaurant.

The luncheon is one of several informal public events in his honor where he will talk with area residents.

Stops on the senator's itinerary that day will include Caldwell, Rockdale, Cameron, and Marlin.

On his weekend return trips to Texas, Bentsen is seeking to meet with his constituency and find out what the people of the state are thinking and what issues concern them.

The Senator has been touring Texas since the May primary visiting friends and supporters and exchanging viewpoints on Congressional matters and national issues.

During the spring, Bentsen covered approximately 20,000 miles in 57 days, stopping in 85 Texas communities.

Bentsen county coordinators--Hub Baker and Mark Caperton, Burleson County; Emory Camp and James Camp, Milam County; and, Carroll Minor, Falls County--made arrangements for the Senator's schedule.

Nurse Trades Clinic For Pilot's Wings

Captain Connie Engel, 26, granddaughter of Leeman and Mable Wilson of Cameron, will report to Lackland AFB Aug. 26 to begin a flight screening program.

She is one of 20 female officers selected for the first pilot training program for women.

The Cameron native received a BS degree in nursing from The University of Texas in 1971. She comes from a family of pilots.

Her husband, Capt. Richard Engel, is an Air Force pilot stationed at Randolph and her brother-in-law is an Army pilot at Ft. Rucker, Ala. Her father, a retired lieutenant colonel, is a former B52 pilot.

After completing the flight screening program at Lackland, Capt. Engel will report to Williams AFB, Ariz., for 49 weeks of jet pilot training.

She'll then be eligible for pilot duty in cargo, tanker, and training aircraft. Public law prevents women from being assigned combat duties so it would be a waste of time to train women in combat planes.

Capt. Engel is in no way giving up her nursing career, however. She says she wants to return to nursing someday and serve in a liason role between women pilots and the medical field.

Because of her nursing specialty, she will be able to give expert opinion on medical problems experienced by women pilots.

CAPT. CONNIE ENGEL and husband Richard strap into Aero Club's T-43. Capt. Engel is one of the first women who will be enrolled as an Air Force pilot trainee. She is a native of Cameron.

CofC Manager Announces Changing Office Routine

The manager of the Cameron Area Chamber of Commerce is announcing a change in office routine which will result in a full-time secretary being on duty with the manager's duties being reduced to part time.

Mrs. Barbara Smitherman, Chamber manager, said the changes will go into effect on September 1.

Cindy Lafferty will be the full-time office secretary. She previously worked in the Chamber office for 2 years and is well acquainted with the work, Mrs. Smitherman said.

Mrs. Smitherman said her time will be spent more working with the Chamber committees and helping plan the program of work. Her hours will vary with no set times at the office, she said. She will also be on call for any member who needs her services.

Mrs. Smitherman said the Chamber cannot afford both a secretary and a manager full time in spite of its large membership. The salaries would take out too much of the budget.

She said a full time secretary is needed to handle the ever-increasing activities which involve more paperwork.

Mrs. Smitherman has been on the job full time for 14 1/2 years, having assumed the duties of manager in 1962.

Charisma For 'Trumanist' Attack

Unless the Republican National Convention reversed its Tuesday night 16-C win for Gerald Ford, the "Gipper" lost to final-stage Ford organization and saw the President nominated.

But such a reverse is predictably unlikely 12 hours before that vote, the passion is gone out of the Reagan drive, and Gerald Ford is naming a vice-presidential running mate this Thursday morning.

Gerald Ford, appointed vice-president and succeeding to the presidency vacated by the Nixon resignation, is now his own man.

Who is his vice-presidential choice? His options were open even when he went to bed Wednesday night. John Connally made the best speech of the convention, lofting phrases of a statesman, political historian and GOP firebrand.

It was not Tennessee's Senator Baker, of minority chair Watergate Committee fame. His speech paled before the polish of the Texan.

But Elliot Richardson, Texan Ann Armstrong and perhaps a half dozen others have provided the data that Ford, almost Carter-like, is reviewing with an objectivity 112 votes gave him in the test of whether Reagan could force his decision Tuesday night, the test which apparently finished Reagan.

Ronald Reagan's word was "irrevocable" on turning away a vice-presidential nomination. This irrevocability would be more up to Ford than the Californian.

Ford's underestimation of the Reagan candidacy in early spring stirred the former California governor to major successes in Texas and Indiana, both states now restored to some GOP order, and the dead-heat delegate race which Ford won by perhaps 30.

If not Reagan and his passion for principle, which the Schweiker decision must have shaken among his supporters, who? Or what?

If not Connally, whose basic strength is in Texas and the South, whose assets are formidable on the podium, the political stump and before television cameras, who promises critics "what for" on the milk scandal charges he beat in open court, who?

For a President who is Midwestern gray as a campaigner, these are his best shots for a campaign ticket. Ford is from Michigan and any consideration of another Midwesterner like Ruckelshaus, formerly from Indiana, is remote.

Ann Armstrong? The first woman for nomination as a vice-presidential candidate in either party? Mrs. Armstrong is able, but not likely.

Elliot Richardson, who has served as attorney general, under-Secretary of State, ambassador to Great Britain (the post held by Armstrong), secretary of commerce? He may be a bit too urbane, too formally competent to stump too well, like a Henry Cabot Lodge.

If Reagan's word is kept by Ford, we come back to Connally. If Connally has convinced the President his trial ended with his primary accuser's nolo contendere pleading in Texas, we see the Southwesterner a better bargain for balancing the ticket than a recalcitrant Reagan.

If Watergate is no longer an issue, and inflation and economic recovery are the issues, it is Connally.

Ford has considered his minority party is less than 20 per cent of a diminishing electorate. He has considered that polls show Jimmy Carter beating him 20 points in California, Reagan by 26 points in his own state. It is at least that bad around the country.

The best solution is a man with passion for a political fight, with ability to assume a presidency one out of three vice-presidents have assumed, with the aplomb to impress big and little in what is an incredible election problem.

Assuming some advantage on a right-of-center platform, President Ford otherwise has political liabilities in a party itself believed to be fading. He can't choose a man as liberal as Walter Mondale for a labor vote. That was Reagan's first mistake in the eyes of millions.

It would seem Ford must opt for charisma, and beyond Reagan and Connally, he has few, if any options.

And without Reagan, the Ford campaign must create a Trumanist attack on a vulnerable Democratic Congress, not just Jimmy Carter.

HERALD CLASSIFIEDS
STAY AROUND ALL DAY

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

According to what I read the other day, to run for President it takes a paid staff of around 250 people. That's more people than it took to run the entire government 200 years ago.

Some more odds and ends: Some outfit has ~~taken~~ a public opinion poll to see what people think of public opinion polls. Thirty-six percent said they thought they were worthless. This is bad news, as I was just getting ready to save the country some money by proposing a poll on whether or not there's life on Mars. Personally, I doubt if there is, not even microscopic life. People might be willing to live on a planet where the temperature drops to 122 degrees below zero at night and rises to only 40 below in the daytime, but microbes have more sense.

Politicians, like generals, who want to fight the next war with the weapons of the last one are usually behind the times in their figures of speech. They're still talking about sweeping out Washington with a broom in this vacuum cleaner age. Also, some of them every once in a while will ~~sayelecting~~ so-and-so would be like using a fox to guard the chickens, when no supermarket manager would think of turning one loose in the frozen food department. I don't even know how this figure of speech got started. Even when chickens were kept in a hen house, no farmer was ever dumb enough to try putting a fox in there to guard them. A more apt figure of speech would be: electing so-and-so would be like using FBI agents as mail clerks, or like Castro's hiring the CIA as a body guard.

One final one: H. L. Mecken always argued it was impossible to underestimate the intelligence of the American public, but he was wrong. The producers of television shows and commercials have done it.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Auto Insurance Rates Rise Again

Auto insurance rates are going up again — but not nearly as much as they would if the State Insurance Board hadn't installed automatic deductibles.

The average statewide increase for private passenger cars will be 7.1 per cent, effective for policies renewed or taken out October 1. This follows a 15.5 per cent hike effective January 1.

Deductibles of $200 for collision and $50 for comprehensive coverage will be written into all policies unless the holder orders otherwise at an additional premium. Policyholders pay the deductibles themselves in event of claims. Companies pay the balance over $50 or $200.

Insurance companies put in for a 27.9 per cent increase, and Insurance Board staff members recommended 19.3 per cent using present optional deductibles.

Actually, car owners in 29 of the 40 rating territories over the state will have reduced premiums under automatic deductibles.

More than 90 per cent of motorists are expected to accept the new system.

Deductibles of $100 are written into most collision policies but not into comprehensive coverage.

Actuaries estimate the deductibles will eliminate $55 million in administrative expenses for insurance companies and save the companies $76 million in pay-outs to drivers.

Premiums vary on the basis of driving record, age, location, uses, make and model of car. Bexar County (San Antonio) drivers would bear the largest increase — about $13 — and those in Waller County would get the biggest reduction, $35.

Study Released

Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation adopted a study calling for a new approach to road planning and new financing methods.

The department earlier instituted one of the recommendations placing highway planning on a statewide system basis rather than the old project-by-project basis.

New test is how much a project contributes to the overall state system rather than how it answers a community's needs.

The report by McKinsey and Company of Dallas (result of a 15-months, $600,000 study) also recommends a moratorium on right-of-way purchases, since a large inventory is on hand which cannot be used for several years.

Many McKinsey proposals for financing highways due to the decrease in projected gasoline taxation already had been recommended by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Prisons Crowded

Texas' prison population will increase about 50 per cent in the next five years, Department of Corrections Director W.J. Estelle told a House committee.

Estelle estimated the number of prisoners will increase from 20,847 to 30,153.

He is pushing for approval of a new prison facility. The prison system can build it for $72 million, he said, but the institution would cost $111 million if it is handled entirely by contract.

Estelle suggested the legislature consider giving counties authority to start work-release programs for their prisoners in local jails.

He backed a restitution program by which the inmates would use part of their earnings to pay victims of their crimes.

AG Opinions

University of Texas regents have to make public a UT system nursing school report and other documents backing their decision to close it, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

— A tax exemption for disabled veterans and their families is constitutional.

— The Railroad Commission must issue notice and conduct hearings in order to issue a formal declaratory ruling requiring interpretation of a previously-adopted commission rule.

— Blood tests for drunk driving are excepted from public disclosure.

— State employee retirement system trustees may promulgate rules requiring state contributions under the uniform group insurance benefits act be applied only to an approved "basic plan" or "retirees plan."

— County officers and employees can be paid for unused sick leave but are not entitled to interest on unpaid claims for accrued leave.

Education Offered

Education will be available next school year for more than 3,000 handicapped children not served by any agency.

Potential students three to 21 years old were located in a five-months statewide search.

Most of those located in the "Child Search" operation fall in the severly-handicapped range, and many suffer from more than one disability — physical, mental or emotional.

Texas Education Agency and regional education service center staff members will work with school districts to develop at least interim programs for the children immediately.

Special staff development programs designed to help administrators, teachers, diagnosticians and other personnel improve their skills are already underway on an emergency basis.

Summertime Season Is Right For Backyard Barbecuing

By Chris Holcombe

Put beef on your shopping list. Then put it on the barbecue. It's the season. Indulge and enjoy while beef is in big supply and at prices advantageous to the consumer. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, fed beef will remain in heavy supply through August.

Barbecuing has become one of the most popular summertime entertainment events as backyards take on a picnic air and a heavy hickory smoked aroma. Practically all cuts of beef lend themselves particularly well to this fashion of cooking.

For those whose skill at the barbecue has not developed to a form of artistry, some tips on barbecuing are offered:

*Build a fire that is large enough so that you will have a good bed of coals. However, do not start cooking until the flame dies down and the charcoal turns grey. This may take half an hour.

*Make certain that the grill is far enough away from the coals so that when fat from the beef drips in and flares up, the flames will not touch and burn the meat.

*Cooking time will vary from standard oven broiling times so a little experimentation is in order.

*If you want real barbecue flavor, baste the meat every few minutes with your favorite barbecue sauce. A piece of clean cloth tied to a stick makes a good dauber.

*It isn't only beef burgers that are suitable for the grill, but practically all cuts of steaks, especially those graded USDA choice or prime. For cooking on skewers, use cubes or chunks of tender or marinated beef chuck or round.

*Large roasts can be cooked outdoors as well, but this requires a spit so that the meat can be turned slowly while cooking.

Something special in the way of beef in the backyard--

Silver-Plated Pot Roast

4 lbs. USDA choice pot roast
4 tea. salt
3 table. flour
1 table. brown sugar
1/2 tea. dry mustard
1 1/2 T. worchestershire
3/4 cup catsup
dash of pepper
1 table. vinegar
1-2 stalks celery, sliced
6 whole carrots
2 onions, quartered
1 green pepper, cut in rings
2 tomatoes, cut in wedges

Brown roast slowly on grill over hot coals for 20 to 30 minutes. Combine next 8 ingredients for sauce. Spoon half of sauce onto center or large piece of aluminum foil. Place meat on top of sauce and cover vegetables and remaining sauce. Fold foil over and seal securely. Bake over slow coals, 1 1/2 to 2 hours or until tender. Serves 6.

Serve A Midwestern Boiled Dinner

Here's a robust family meal that is lovely to look at, has old-fashioned good flavor and cooks all in one pot! Fresh vegetables and natural casing Polish sausage combine for stick-to-the-ribs goodness just like down on the farm.

Precooked, natural casing sausages are time and money savers with the added bonus of good flavor and nutrition. Specially selected meats are chopped and seasoned according to Old World recipes before stuffing into natural casings. After smoking, which imparts flavor and color, the sausage is ready to heat and eat—or combine in casseroles, salads and sauces.

Polish sausage here is boiled with new potatoes, then carrots and asparagus are added at the end of the cooking time. A version of the traditional New England boiled dinner, which is made with beef brisket, potatoes and various vegetables, this sausage dish is every bit as attractive when the ingredients are arranged separately on a platter.

Midwestern Boiled Dinner

1½ pounds natural casing Polish sausage
1 pound new potatoes, washed
Salted water
1 large bunch carrots, pared
1 pound fresh asparagus, trimmed
Salt and pepper

(1) In large Dutch oven, place Polish sausage and new potatoes with water to cover. Cover and bring to a boil; reduce heat to simmer. Simmer 20 minutes or until potatoes are almost done.

(2) Add carrots and cook, covered, until almost tender, about 5 minutes. Add asparagus and cook, covered, another 5 minutes. Drain. On large platter, arrange as follows: Place Polish sausage links in circular fashion on platter and fill center with potatoes. Arrange carrots and asparagus in spoke fashion around sausage. Season to taste. Serves 4 to 6.

Let's Talk About Getting the Most From Rx Dollars

By MARGARET ROSS

The next time you have a prescription filled, be prepared to spend a little more than $5. Though some cost more and some cost less, that's the average charge for a prescription at a pharmacy. Also be prepared to get your money's worth from the purchase by knowing how to use the medicine correctly. A drug's good performance hinges on proper use.

The most important step you can take in getting your money's worth from a drug is to talk with your doctor. But don't urge the doctor to give you a prescription. Some illnesses can be treated effectively without drugs. When your physician does prescribe a drug, ask what it's supposed to do and how long you should take it. Find out if there are any side effects from the drug, such as drowsiness. Immediately contact your doctor if any unexpected reaction occurs, such as a rash.

Find out if this prescription can be taken with any other medicines you are using. Learn whether the medicine can be taken with food.

Fall Fashions To Suit Everyone

Fall fashion trends for 1976 will provide something for everyone. The variety of styles and colors will make it easy to find just the right addition for any wardrobe, Margaret Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist, reports.

She's with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

"Popular looks will range from rugged, outdoorsy and layered to classic suits and separates to soft, feminenly sexy evening wear.

"Country looks that provide functional, unstructured garments worn in layers will be the most contemprorary trend. Sweaters, tunics, coats, and ponchos will be an important partof this look, along with natural assessories such as jute or braid belts and leather boots," she said.

In addition to traditional fall colors such as raisin, gray, beige, and copper, brights will be available. Brilliant reds, blue, and orange will be set off by winter white, possibly the newest fall color trend.

Fabrics will provide interest through texture and patterns as well as color. Blanket plaids, fur fabrics, crinkled cottons and crepe de chines will play prominent roles this fall.

Accessories will include the return of colored and textured hosiery and long fringed mufflers. Bangle bracelets will remain popular, as will belts and scarves.

Fall, 1976, will be a good season for expressing individuality through clothing, she pointed out.

Fire Ants Continue Spread

Imported fire ants are now common in virtually all of the eastern half of Texas and are continuing their trek westward.

"Although records on the distribution of fire ants are somewhat behind actual field observations, it seems the fire ant has infested counties extending from Cooke County in North Texas all the way down to Kleberg County at the southern end of the state," points out John Jackman, an entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Fire ant infestations also extends as far west as Kerr and Bandera counties in the Texas Hill Country."

Jackman says that 74 of the counties that have a fire ant problem are under partial or complete federal quarantine or are labeled suppression areas. This means that soil and earth-moving equipment must be checked when being transported from a quarantined county to one not under quarantine. This is an attempt to prevent transporting the fire ant.

Fire ants have been classed as eradicated in Williamson, McLennan, Erath, and Henderson counties, says the Texas A&M University System entomologist.

Mirex, a chemical used to control the imported fire ant, continues to undergo careful evaluation by the Environmental Protection Agency. Allied Chemical Corporation discontinued production of the chemical in February, and Mirex is now being produced by the state of Mississippi and is available through the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Jackman says farmers and ranchers can obtain the chemical free of charge by requesting it through their County Commissioners Court. Since supplies are limited, distribution will be on a first come first serve basis.

Onion Crop Forecast to Increase in '76

AUSTIN–Summer onions from Texas are hitting the markets and supplies should be good, according to statistics recently released by Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Texas is the nation's top producer of the summer fresh market crop.

Production is expected to hit 1,980 hundredweight (cwt.), approximately 41 percent more than the 1975 crop of 1.404 cwt., according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

Yield per acre will hit 300 cwt., an increase of 30 cwt. over the 270 cwt. per acre yield last year. Harvested acres are set at 6,600, a 1,400-acre jump from the total for the previous year.

Harvest began at Pecos during late May and is expected to continue through August.

On the High Plains, onions are developing well, although some farmers have reported insect damage, White reported.

Farmers Trying Guar As Soil Building Crop

Bill McCutchen

Farmers are a restless breed and always looking for new and better methods of production and new crop possibilities. It is this restlessness and willingness to try new crops and new ideas that have made the American farmer the best in the world.

At least three producers, Oscar Theis of Thorndale, Kenneth Hollas and Frank Kratochvil of Cameron, have some quar acreage this year. Guar is a high quality oil and protein crop, and it is an excellent soil builder.

Most of the acreage in the county is planted with the soil building in mind, but the producers admit that it would be nice to make some money in harvesting seed at the same time.

The bulk of the quar was planted on wheat stubble and stands are good. Guar plant are hardy and hang in there in hot dry weather. Another thing producers noted is that armyworms do not bother quar. The worms ate volunteer wheat in June and July, but did not touch the quar.

Mow Weedy Pastures

Mowing in late summer is a good means of reducing weed seed production as well as removing old mature forage and stimulating new tender regrowth.

Weeds use water and fertilizer in addition to slowing grass growth. Some weeds, such as thistles, also prevent cattle from grazing large areas because of their spiney leaves.

If possible, graze a pasture heavily just before mowing to use all forage available.

Also, rather than mowing all of your pasture at one time and removing the forage allowing poor regrowth due to dry weather, try mowing one-third to one-half of your pasture at a time.

TEXAS FEEDLOTS ARE ON THE UPSWING The slump that hit feedlots in Texas during 1973 appears to be over, according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White. Placements into Texas feedlots during April were 22 percent above April 1975 figures. Bumper grain harvests played an important role in the recovery.

Bumper Grain Harvest Revitalizes State's Feedlots

AUSTIN--The slump that hit feedlots in Texas and the nation in 1973 seems to finally be over, and indications are that more grain-fed beef will be showing up in markets across the state.

"The state's feedlot owners rang in the new year with red meat production in January 1976 showing a 27 percent increase over production during the same period in 1975," Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said.

Cattle and calf slaughter accounts for a large part of the overall red meat figure, White explained.

Upturns in the state's feedlot business are here to stay, most experts feel. Feedlots which had been idle during much of 1975 are filling again with beef on the hoof.

The most recent statistics available indicate that placements into Texas feedlots during April were 285,000 head, 21 percent below March 1976 but, more important, 22 percent above April 1975 figures.

And a 14 percent increase in production of red meats during April was reported. Red meat production so far this year is slightly more than 1 billion pounds compared with 935 million pounds in 1975.

A bumper crop of the feed grains -- corn and sorghum -- helped the feedlot recovery by resulting in cheaper feed. Total stocks (including oats and barley) as of April 1 were estimated at 144 million bushels, 34 percent above a year ago.

Gospel Sing Set Here

If you enjoy good gospel singing, you will want to attend the "Gospel Sing" presented by the Cameron Police Association on Tuesday, August 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Methodist Fellowship Hall.

Three groups will be featured including the Joel Perales family of San Antonio, (Joel is also singer and pianist for The Galileans); Merle and the Gospel Four of Dallas; and the Sun-rise Singers of Alvin. This group includes Marlon Sparks, who is the son of Sgt. Bill Sparks of Cameron Police Dept.

Tickets for the event are now on sale at Cameron city hall.

Rodeo Set At Bar-1-Bar

There will be a rodeo on Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Bar-1-Bar arena, four miles south of Milano off Highway 36.

Events will include bareback riding, bull riding, barrel racing, calf roping, and team roping. Books will open Friday August 20 from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m Call 713-396-2978, Normangee.

Stock producers are the Bar-1-Bar and R-4 Rodeo Co.

Admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for children. A dance will follow the rodeo. The public is invited.

Charcoal Rot Appears In Grain, Corn

Charcoal rot, a fungus disease, is appearing in corn and sorghum throughout Texas.

"Plants affected by this condition die prematurely from damage to the lower stalk," explains Dr. Wendell Horne, plant pathoogist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Corn ears or sorghum heads will not develop properly, and lodging (stalk falling over) will be widespread if winds occur."

A producer can diagnose the disease by cutting a stalk lengthwise and looking at the plant tissue. If the fungus is present, the soft tissue will have been eaten away, leaving only the water-transporting bundles. It may look as though someone had taken a comb and actually combed out the softer tissues, explains Horne. Infection cuts off the flow of water and nutrients to the upper portions of the plant, causing the plant to die quickly and the grain fails to mature properly.

"Charcoal rot fungus is in the soil throughout the year, and most fields are infected," says Horne. "However, the disease infects corn and sorghum only at heading time and when plants are under drought stress. Since the disease causes little problem where adequate moisture is available, producer who have the capability of irrigation can completely eliminate damage from charcoal rot."

However, dryland producers can also take steps to avoid charcoal rot damage to corn and sorghum, points out the Texas A&M University System specialist.

Planting at the proper rate to avoid excess plant populations will help. Also, anything that can be done to aid in the storage of soil moisture will help ward off this disease condition.

If charcoal rot has been identified in fields this year, Horne advises producers to plan ahead to prevent future damage.

"As far as lodging is concerned, there is considerable difference among hybrids," notes Horne. "Some hybrids have stronger stalks so less lodging occurs, making it appear that they are more resistant to charcoal rot than other varieties."

Weather Controls Diseases

Foliar diseases of peanuts are presently widespread in Texas, but producers can reduce disease by watching both their crops and the weather.

"By keeping an observant eye on the weather, growers can determine when conditions are right for infection to occur," explains Dr. Wendell Horne, plant pathologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The Extension Service has outlined a system whereby growers in the major peanut-producing areas can observe weather conditions and thus avoid excessive disease damage to their crop. Through a cooperative effort with the National Weather Service, forecasts are made in relation to potential disease development conditions, and this information is aired on many local radio stations. Producers can then take action by applying protective fungicides as the situation demands.

"Fungicide application should be made at regular intervals when conditions are right for infection to occur," advises Horne. "Whenever there is dew, conditions are generally favorable for disease development. Most fungicides should be applied at 10-to-14 day intervals for optimum control. Good coverage with fungicides is essential for effective disease control."

By watching weather conditions and applying fungicides properly, a peanut grower can avoid disease problems that drastically reduce yields.

An Amazing Comeback... New Regulations... Moving On

Cotton, which has been counted down and out several times, has and is making an amazing comeback this season. A year ago at this time, cotton prices to producers averaged 37 cents a pound.

Now, a year later, the statewide average is 70 cents per pound. Cotton is also now nearing the parity ratio, although it still has about a dime a pound to go before getting there.

Despite the cotton price, commodity prices on the average increased only two per cent this past month. And livestock prices showed a three per cent decline.

Putting everything together pricewise, agriculture continues to be way below parity. The ratio of parity is now at 67; that compares with 68 a month ago and 71 a year ago.

A look at individual commodity and livestock prices tells the story even more clearly when comparing them with parity.

Wheat averaging $3.51 a bushel in Texas is about $1.40 per bushel below parity. Sorghum, which averaged $4.54, is more than a dollar under parity. The only crop above parity is oats at $1.66, and that is only a nickel above the ratio.

Take a look at livestock and you see even more discrepancies between prices and parity.

The only bright spot there is sheep at $17.20; that is 70 cents above parity. Hog prices averaging $44.30 are about $9 under parity. Calf prices averaging 35 cents are almost 50 per cent below parity, and beef cattle averaging $32.40 are $25 under parity.

NEW REGULATIONS ARE IN EFFECT in relation to the screwworm eradication program. All livestock shipped out of the state must now be certified by state authorities or accredited veterinarians to be free of screwworms.

And livestock going into southeastern states must be sprayed or dipped for screwworm control even though they are screwworm-free.

Screwworm infestations are now threatening several states and are becoming more of a problem in Texas every day. The big increase in infestations will occur now through November.

Meanwhile, screwworm officials at Mission urge livestock producers to check livestock regularly, treat wounds on livestock with approved screwworm control remedies, delay surgery on livestock as long as possible, and submit suspected samples of screwworms to the fly lab at Mission.

By cooperating along these lines, livestock producers will be doing their part to hold down the infestations at as low a level as is possible.

WITH SUMMER MOVING ON, so is crop harvesting. Cotton harvesting is picking up speed in the southern portions of the state and is just beginning in the central areas.

Sorghum harvest is moving along rapidly and planting of fall sorghum is underway in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

'75 Field Crop Statistics

AUSTIN--The 1975 Texas Field Crops Statistics book has been published, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has announced.

The free 89-page booklet includes statistics on all field crops except small grains and cotton.

Such information as production, farm use, sales and value of corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, rice, peanuts and hay is included.

The statistics book also contains information on the number of farms and land.

For a free copy of 1975 Texas Field Crops Statistics, write Commissioner John C. White, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

TP&L residential customers in 247 cities pay less for electricity than the people who live in Austin, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, San Antonio, and Washington, D.C.... to name just a few.

In Waxahachie and most other cities in the Texas Power & Light service area, 1,000 kilowatt-hours of residential electricity costs less than in most areas of Texas and the nation.

We're not overlooking the fact that in recent years the price of electricity has gone up everywhere, including the area served by TP&L. Skyrocketing costs of producing and supplying power have left TP&L and other companies no choice but to ask customers to pay more for their electric service.

Even so, the price of TP&L electricity today is far less than it would have been if we were not constantly working to hold down the price. One of the ways we're doing this is to build and operate generating plants which use lower cost lignite coal as fuel rather than natural gas. Two lignite plants are now producing power for TP&L customers and others are under construction and being planned.

For more than sixty-four years, Texas Power & Light has supplied dependable electric service at a fair price. We're working to keep it that way.

Soon... the Explosion

According to pessimists it won't be long before the world blows itself up. Now that man has the capability to wipe out civilization, they say, his unrestrained instincts will drive him to do just that.

But are man's instincts unrestrained?

The principles of law, morality, responsibility are the foundations of an orderly society. They have their roots in religion.

In the Ten Commandments, the Sermon on the Mount, the life and message of Jesus Christ, the hopes and destiny of mankind are expressed. Earnest men have been channeling instincts and spiritual energies to positive purpose for generations.

Next time someone says "soon — the explosion"... invite that person to come to church with you and your family.

Wood Adds Flair To Outdoor Design

While decks, benches and other outdoor structures can be used as landscaping design elements themselves, the boards, planks and other materials should be selected, placed and finished carefully to add to the finished effect.

The lines of a deck should be drawn to complement and echo the design and scale of the existing house. Placing the deck boards at right angles or parallel to the house, for example, can shorten or lengthen the visual proportions.

Steps, benches and screens added to the front of a house can blend in nicely, reminiscent of front porches of earlier days.

Natural materials, such as the wood used to build these projects, can be left natural or lightly stained to match or complement any house.
